

"He will wipe away every tear from their eyes. Death will be no more; grief, crying, and pain will be no more..." — Revelation 21:4

In law enforcement, you spend your career navigating "the sea"—the biblical symbol for chaos, fear, and the darker side of humanity. You see the wreckage of a broken world daily, often wondering if the cycle of trauma ever ends.

Revelation 21 offers a "movie trailer" for our future: God isn't taking us away to a boring, distant cloud; He is bringing Heaven back to Earth.

The promise is profound: the chaos will end. The text says "the sea was no more," meaning an end to the instability and violence you face on shift.

God promises to personally "wipe away every tear," making every "sad thing come untrue." This includes the trauma you've carried and the heartbreak you've witnessed behind the crime scene tape.

God is with you. He is in the patrol car with you now, but one day, He will dwell here permanently in a restored world. Your service holds back the chaos until the King returns to finish the job.

Reflect: What trauma or "sea of chaos" do you need to hand over to Him today?
