

Law enforcement is a calling, not just a job. But what happens when you don't feel up to it? When you feel the weight of your limitations, past failures, or simply wonder, "Who am I to make a difference?"

That's where Moses was when God called him—not in a temple or on a retreat, but at work, doing a routine task. God's voice came through fire, not to affirm Moses' strength, but to remind him of God's. Moses asked, "Who am I?" God answered, "I will be with you."

Your confidence is not in your title, training, or toughness—but in the One who calls you. God's calling is stronger than your weakness and greater than your failures. He doesn't need your perfection. He wants your presence, your attention, your "Here I am."

So today, as you head into shift, don't miss the burning bush in the mundane. God may be speaking. Take off your shoes, metaphorically—and remember: Our weakness cannot hinder God's strength.

You are not alone. You are called. And God is with you.
