COURSE CONTENT:

- This one-day course is designed for first responders who face repeated trauma and are expected to carry it without pause.
- Participants will explore the real factors driving suicide risk, including chronic stress, hypervigilance, substance use, and cultural barriers to seeking help. Through interactive discussion and real-world application, this training introduces practical tools to recognize warning signs and have direct, life-saving conversations.
- Attendees will learn to apply the CCDR model to respond with confidence and connect others to appropriate care.
- This course will prepare participants to understand various crisis intervention services for individuals and groups.
