What is winning in court? For a law enforcement professional, the answer is simple: Being found to be credible, relevant, helpful, and persuasive. Officers who routinely make life-and-death decisions on the street can become frustrated and anxious on the witness stand. As with most areas in life, knowledge is power. Being an effective witness is a learnable skill, and this training will teach you how to testify in a way that judges and juries find believable.

“Extremely relevant and informative. Great training. Thanks again!” – Alex, Muscatine Police Officer

“This should be a required school for all law enforcement. Excellent!” – Troy, Cedar Rapids Police Officer

“Because of this training, I now feel more comfortable with going to trial.” – Amber, Council Bluffs Police Detective

“Dynamic speaker. Real world experiences make materials relevant.” – Kris, University Heights Police Officer

INSTRUCTOR: MATT WILBER, Pottawattamie County Attorney

Matt Wilber was elected as the Pottawattamie County Attorney (Council Bluffs, Iowa) in 2002, after working as a criminal defense lawyer and federal judicial law clerk. He has been a trial lawyer for nearly thirty years, successfully handling dozens of state and federal jury trials – many of which have been subject to considerable trial publicity. He is a Past President of the Iowa County Attorneys Association (ICAA) and routinely trains prosecutors and law enforcement officers on effective trial practice. Matt has been a National District Attorneys Association faculty member since 2009 and sits on the NDAA National Board of Directors as a Past Vice President and current State Director.
