Introduction to Subterranean Tactics: Operations in Caves, Tunnels, Bunkers, and Other Underground Structures

What

This specialized course prepares law enforcement, military, and tactical response personnel for the unique challenges of operating in underground environments. Participants will learn mission planning, movement techniques, hazard identification, communication strategies, and engagement principles tailored for confined, low-light, and structurally complex spaces such as caves, tunnels, utility corridors, bunkers, and subterranean facilities. The course emphasizes safety, equipment selection, air-quality considerations, and team coordination while addressing threats ranging from armed suspects to environmental dangers. Through practical instruction, scenario-based exercises, and real-world case studies, students gain the skills and confidence needed to navigate and operate effectively in some of the most demanding operational settings.
